This map of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, illustrates the city's geographical layout and its relationship with the Milwaukee River. The city is divided into several distinct neighborhoods, each with its own characteristics and landmarks. The Milwaukee River flows through the city, providing a natural boundary and a source of recreation. The map also shows the city's major roads and highways, which connect different parts of the city and provide access to the surrounding area.

The map highlights the following neighborhoods and landmarks:

- Downtown: The central business district, featuring the Marquette University and the Pabst Brewery Complex.
- East Side: A residential area with a mix of historic and modern housing, including the Riverside Park and the Northpoint.
- West Side: A residential area with a mix of historic and modern housing, including the Garden Homes and the Washington Park.
- North Side: A residential area with a mix of historic and modern housing, including the Downer Woods and the Northpoint.
- South Side: A residential area with a mix of historic and modern housing, including the Walker's Point and the Henry Maier Festival Park.
